GRAND JURY SESSION MAY BE PROLONGED ONE IN HAUPTMANN CASE; WARDEN READY TO GRANT ANOTHER DELAY IF NECESSARY

Foreman Issues Blast at His Critics — Claims No Action To Be Taken by Jury Until All Evidence Is In — Chicago Prisoner Being Sped to Trenton to Tell What He Knows of the Ransom Bills

TRENTON, N. J., April 2—Issuing a blast at his critics and threatening action against one radio commentator for his remarks, Alleyene Freeman, foreman of the runaway Mercer County Grand Jury, which has temporarily saved Bruno Richard Hauptmann's life, today held that the jury may be in session a long time.

This assumed a strong significance in the stand taken by Colonel Mark O. Kimberling, keeper of the State Penitentiary, who set 8 p. m. tomorrow night for Hauptmann's execution. Kimberling asserted he would grant another delay at that time if the Grand Jury still is in session considering Paul Wendel, disbarred Trenton attorney's confession that he kidnapped the Lindbergh baby.

Freeman indicated there are a great many witnesses to be investigated, and declared no action would be taken by the Grand Jury until all the evidence is in.

Concerning the remark made by the radio commentator, he said in part:

"I recommend that he make a study of the Grand Jury system and particularly of the State of New Jersey, pertaining thereto. I will call upon him to answer when the time permits."

CHICAGO, Ill., April 2—While Stephen Stitz, Bridewell prisoner, was being sped to Trenton today, the Chicago Evening American said it learned his release was arranged personally by Governor Harold Hoffman of New Jersey.

The Governor, who once reprieved Bruno Richard Hauptmann, sent $872 to Chicago to pay the balance of Stitz's fine for conviction on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses, it was stated.

Stitz's lawyer received the money from Governor Hoffman, the American said. This statement was based on the fact that Stitz and his lawyer are on their way to Trenton. Stitz said he could negotiate to buy $20,000 of the Lindbergh ransom bills, at 40c on the dollar. Later he said he cashed $5,000 in bills and was willing to disclose the hiding place to Governor Hoffman. Stitz, the American said, was able to convince the officials that his story might be important in the case. If the story stands, officials point out, it might complicate the case, it might free Hauptmann, or it might further implicate Hauptmann.

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

TRENTON, N. J., April 2—(INS)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's fate hung in the balance again today.

Although the convicted murderer of the Lindbergh baby is doomed to die at 8 o'clock tomorrow night, an atmosphere of uncertainty prevailed in Trenton today and no one knew for sure whether Executioner Robert Elliott would "throw the switch" at the appointed hour.

A new set of invitations to Hauptmann's "execution by electricity" was about to be issued by Colonel Mark O. Kimberling, principal keeper of the New Jersey State Prison, but whether the recipients would use them was open to conjecture.

Everybody was watching the action of the Mercer County Grand Jury. This body of 23 men held Hauptmann's fate in their hands. They were to resume this morning their investigation of the now famous Paul H. Wendel "confession." Wendel, a former Trenton lawyer, confessed the Lindbergh murder and then repudiated the confession, saying he was tortured into making it.

If the Grand Jury indicts Wendel, Hauptmann probably will get a new lease on life. If they do not the chances are Hauptmann will "burn."

Rumors were current that the United States Department of Justice would investigate Wendel's claim that he was kidnapped in New York, tortured and detained against his will before he made the "confession" to Ellis H. Parker, Burlington (N. J.) county detective and friend of Governor Harold G. Hoffman.

The "Wendel confession" has resulted in a bitter political fight in which charges are being bandied back and forth. An aftermath of investigation is forecast, possibly leading to a legislative inquiry.

Criticism was being leveled at certain officials because of the fact that although Wendel's "confession" was allegedly made a month ago it was not presented to the grand jury for investigation until this week.

The situation has many officials shaking their heads. Attorney General David T. Wilentz, who prosecuted Hauptmann and who has been opposing the intervention moves of Governor Hoffman, ruefully admitted he is "a very confused young man."

Ever since Governor Hoffman paid a visit to Hauptmann in the death house last October 17, the Hauptmann case has been one sensation after another. Hoffman from then on began casting doubt on the sole guilt of Hauptmann even though the evidence against the prisoner at his trial satisfied both the judge and the jury.

Hauptmann was first scheduled to die January 17 last but Governor Hoffman reprieved him. His execution was next set for Tuesday night, March 21. The foreman of the grand jury, Continued on Page Four

ESSAY AND SONG CONTEST TO FEATURE YOUTH WEEK

Announce Rules Governing
Both and Prizes To Be Awarded

TO CREATE INTEREST

Two contests to be conducted in connection with Youth Week here are innovations this year. One is the essay contest for boys and the other is a song contest for girls. Awards of $5 are offered to the winners of each.

Each church is requested to set apart a portion of the morning service on Sunday, April 26th, so that the winning essay and the winning song can be made a part of the service and thus create interest in the Youth Week movement.

Robert C. Ruehl is chairman of the committee handling this feature of the Youth Week program.

Rules and conditions governing the contests are here set forth:

Boys: An award of $5 will be given to that boy whose composition shall best express the value of Youth Week and reasons why such a movement should receive whole-hearted community endorsement. The following rules shall apply: (1) No composition shall exceed 500 words; (2) written in ink, or typewritten; (3) writing on one side of paper; and (4) shall be given to the individual in charge of the school which the contestant attends, not later than April 15. (5) This contest is open to boys in eighth grade and high school, provided they are not older than 16 years.

Girls: An award of $5.00 will be given to that girl whose song shall be judged to be the best and most suitable for Youth Week. This winning song will be used during Youth Week, beginning with church services on April 26. The words must fit a melody suitable to be sung in church, but not necessarily sacred music. It should be such a song that could be used by a quartette. The following rules shall apply: (1) This song shall be limited to four verses; (2) it shall be written in ink or typewritten; (3) the name of the music must be stated and must be one readily available; (4) the song must be given to the individual in charge of the school which the contestant attends on or before April 15. (5) The contest is open to girls in eighth grade and high school provided they are not older than 16 years.

Team of Astaire-Rogers Here in "Follow the Fleet"

Ginger Rogers fans are handed a treat in "Follow the Fleet," in which the vivacious titian-haired star dances four times and sings two of Irving Berlin's haunting melodies, at the Grand Theatre tonight and tomorrow. Three of Ginger's dance numbers are done with her bewitching partner, Fred Astaire. They perform a sizzling hot collegiate ballroom routine to the tune "Let Yourself Go."

Later, they do a screamingly humorous eccentric pantomime dance to "All My Eggs In One Basket," and they also join in a vocal rendition of this number.

For the finale, Miss Rogers and Astaire perform a different interpretative dance to "Let's Face the Music and Dance."

INVISIBLE TAXES

By HON. FRED A. HARTLEY, JR.,
Member of the House of Representatives from New Jersey.
In an Address Over the National Broadcasting System.

In its last session, Congress appropriated nine billion, nine hundred forty-eight million, three hundred seventy thousand dollars.

To give you an idea of just how fast YOUR money is being spent by the Federal Government, I call to your attention that that figure represents over twenty-seven million dollars every day, over one million dollars every hour, over eighteen thousand dollars every minute, and over three hundred dollars every second.

When added to the cost of local and State governments and compared with the total national income, it becomes apparent that you, my listeners, are paying nearly thirty cents out of every dollar you earn for the cost of government.

The earnings of over three months of your year's work is what you pay to be governed.

The Tax Bill is now the biggest bill paid by the American people. We pay more for taxes than we do for food or for rent, twice as much as we do for clothing, and six times as much as is spent for light and power.

You may or may not pay an income tax or a real estate tax, but you are PAYING IT JUST THE SAME.

The trend in tax legislation in recent years has been most insidious.

Taxation has become the art of so picking the goose as to secure the greatest amount of feathers with the least amount of squawking.

We have turned from DIRECT TAXES on private incomes, which we could all understand, to INDIRECT TAXES on private spending, which few can decipher.

Our taxes have been disguised, they have been candy-coated or they have been injected as a narcotic in every business transaction, leaving most of us unconscious of the fact that we are being assessed. As a result, EVERYTHING WE BUY, not only luxuries, but our FOOD AND CLOTHING, the very necessities of life, are INCREASED IN COST.

Let us take a look at some of our hidden taxes.

You have been in the habit of crawling out of bed in the morning from between cotton sheets taxed at over four cents per pound.

You have gone into the bathroom and turned on the electric light taxed at 3 per cent of your bill.

You have brushed your teeth with a dentifrice taxed at 5 per cent.

The soap you used had a 5 per cent tax on it.

When you sat down to breakfast there was a card on your plate printed in invisible ink which you could not read, but which said, nevertheless: "Cover charge payable to government—25 per cent of the cost of all food on this table."

Your ham was taxed over two dollars per hundred weight.

The ice-water came from a refrigerator which was taxed 5 per cent of what you paid for it.

The toast you ate carried fifty-three separate taxes.

Other food, the silverware, linens, dishes and other household appliances each bore the sign—also invisible—of hundreds of tax collectors.

When you light a cigarette you are taxed nearly one hundred per cent. You paid thirteen cents for the package, but you didn't notice the little green stamp pasted on the top which, had your curiosity been great enough, would have disclosed to you that Uncle Sam collected six cents in tax.

The flivver you drive to the office carries a 3 per cent sales tax. Your tires are taxed two and a half cents per pound—the inner tubes four cents a pound—and when you fill your tank with gas you pay more in taxes on the gas than its wholesale price. Meantime, your wife's cosmetics, perfumes and furs and jewels—if she is fortunate enough to possess them—are all taxed 10 per cent.

If you hunt or fish, your gun and your rod bear a 10 per cent tax. If you play golf or tennis, your clubs and racquet each carry a 10 per cent tax.

EXTENSIVE WORK IS NECESSARY AT PARK

Flood Caused Considerable Damage at Washington
Crossing Park

REPAIRING THE TOWER

NEW HOPE, Apr. 2—As a result of the inundation of the lands of the Washington Crossing Park, extensive repairs will have to be undertaken, according to the park superintendent, Dr. John A. Flood, of this place.

Greatest damage was done to the bridge across the Pennsylvania canal in the park. In the first freshet, that of March 13, both approaches to the bridge were washed away. The second flood extended the damage, so that the two piers and bridge stand isolated and the road is closed. While repairs to the canal property are affected by the pending litigation between the State and canal company, the road and bridge are needed for public convenience and the superintendent has applied for WPA assistance in having the approaches rebuilt.

In addition to this damage the park is cluttered with broken trees and miscellaneous debris which will be cleared away as soon as men can be assigned to this work.

Another project started a few days ago is the repair and reconditioning of the observation tower on Bowman's Hill just south of New Hope. This tower, a notable landmark since its construction about four years ago, has begun to show signs of weakening of masonry, due to action of the weather.

A force of men is now at work strengthening the masonry and also weatherproofing the seams by a special process that will improve the appearance of the tower and resist action of the elements in the future. Several weeks will be required to complete this job.

AVERAGE DIRECTOR AFRAID TO CARRY OUT CONVICTIONS

Head of Doylestown School Board So States At Convention

URGES COMMON SENSE

Wm. H. Satterthwaite Speaks
At County School
Meeting

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 2—Although it is not a new thought in the general trend of education today, the Bucks County School Directors' Association in annual session Tuesday were again reminded that the crying need today is the development of a public school system that will give boys and girls the type of education they want rather than to concentrate on preparation for college and the production of industrial giants.

The timely comment was made near the closing session of the annual convention, by Ezra A. Miller, Newtown, president of the county directors' body. His remarks followed an afternoon of open forum discussions in which prominent educators of Bucks county participated.

William H. Satterthwaite, president of the Doylestown school board, struck a popular note at the afternoon session when he said that he noticed a great change in school directors during the past 15 years.

"School directors are elected to carry on the business of the schools and it used to be that directors served in that manner," the Doylestown school board head declared, "but nowadays the average director is afraid to carry out his own convictions; he is afraid of the petitions by citizens, the town in general, the county, the state department and sometimes the county superintendent. What we should do as directors, is to awaken to the fact that we are supposed to use our common sense and act accordingly."

President Miller, who was re-elected to head the association for another year, presided at the morning and afternoon sessions. Other officers elected were as follows: Vice-presidents, Wallace J. Growney, Bridgeton township, and Samuel G. Detweiler, Redminister township; secretary, Mrs. Laura C. Taylor, Bristol; treasurer, Walter M. Carwithen, Doylestown.

The report of the recent state convention of school directors was presented by Anthony Rezzonico, Kintnersville, who announced that 57 Bucks county school directors attended.

Mrs. Taylor reported on the Bucks county dinner held at the state convention.

"The larger school unit" as proposed by educators in Pennsylvania came in for a long discussion at the afternoon session. "No matter whether you like the idea or not the larger unit is going to come," declared Richard Hopkins, Hulmeville. "We are going to have it, so perhaps we had better start to prepare in Bucks county so that we will have something to say about the new system. 'The larger unit plan will mean better libraries and that will be an improvement for the average for all schools is quite low in literature. Sanitary conditions of a great many of the rural schools are poor. In many cases the water supply is too close to the toilets.'"

County Superintendent J. Harry Hoffman, who spoke several times during the convention, made it plain that the reason no outside speaker was booked for the 1936 convention was so that Bucks county directors could get together and discuss their own problems rather than be told how things are done in some other section of the state which might not work at all at home.

"We are going to have some discouraging situations when the next school term opens in Bucks county," Superintendent Hoffman declared. "In Doylestown, just for an example, the school is much over-crowded now. A class of 99 will leave and usually 200 new pupils are admitted. That means that at least 100 will have to be taken care of somewhere else, in other schools. What are we going to do with the boys and girls promoted from the eight grades this year?"

"My suggestion would be to have the rural districts form a combined or consolidated school for all grades in the Bucks county districts from one to six and to see to it that the transportation distance is not too great for I am opposed to that. Grades seven to twelve can come into the boroughs for junior high and for high school work. This will mean increased transportation costs of course but that is exactly what Bucks county will have to do.

"I also believe that we should take care of that group of children in Bucks county that is not academically equal. I believe that a vocational department should be established in the larger schools. I could save a lot of rural children if there were vocational training available for them, for then all unequal children would have an equal opportunity.

A GENEROUS RESPONSE

Bristol and vicinity have responded nobly to the appeal of the Red Cross for funds with which to aid the flood sufferers and the response thus far shows a fine spirit on the part of the people to aid those who have suffered in the great flood catastrophe.

The contributions have come from a large number of folks, from the rich and from the poor. Church congregations have donated and so have children in the youngest grades of the schools in this area. Sunday Schools have given from their treasuries and the boy on the farm, making but a dollar a week, sent along his ten cents so that those who were in need might be assisted.

One individual, calling the Red Cross chairman, said that he wanted to make a thank offering, because his property like others in this immediate locality had been spared.

It is such spirit as this which has characterized the donations totalling $1,000 thus far to the Bristol Branch of the American Red Cross. Residents of this section always do respond in a worthwhile cause, and that presented by the Red Cross is such a cause.

UNEMPLOYED BEES

Through some curious coincidence the bees are passing through lean years even as man is muddling and suffering through a period of depression. In a period when even bread is endangered for some and life needs sweetening for all the loss of honey is like denying the condemned a sip of water.

Several explanations are advanced for the unfiled hives and combs. A British scientist holds that from year to year the days are getting shorter leaving fewer "shining hours" for the bees to "improve."

Another points out that bees are communists, that while they were once endowed with reason they lost it by so ordering life as to dispense with it.

And then this seeming loss of bee thrift and providence may be due to a lulling dislike for mass production. It is argued that bees prefer personal contact with the keeper and that never again will the busy bee be busy and a willing worker unless the individualized family hive returns to sting to life the old apple orchard.

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste, poisonous matter may develop, causing serious trouble. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, which have been used successfully by millions of people for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to flush out the 15 miles of kidney tubes. Get Doan's Pills at your druggist.

"THERE'S MURDER IN THE AIR"

by ROY CHANSLOR

SYNOPSIS

Ruth Tyler, blind daughter of former District Attorney Daniel Tyler, is psychic. She foretells murders at the exact time they are being committed but is powerless to give sufficient information to prevent them. These weird visitations come upon Ruth while she plays her violin and always at night. Mr. Tyler seeks the aid of Dr. Jan Karasek, celebrated psychiatrist, but the latter must go to Baltimore on another case. Tyler expresses his disappointment that Karasek is not interested.

CHAPTER II

"Interested?" exclaimed Dr. Karasek. "But certainly I am interested, my dear fellow! I would give almost anything—why, this is a fascinating case, sir, fascinating. I'm not one to exaggerate; so you will believe me when I tell you this case may prove to be one of incomparable—yes, incomparable importance to the study of mental phenomena!"

"Then why—" Tyler was bewildered.

"The case to which I am committed involves the sanity of a dear friend," said Dr. Karasek. "Perhaps the lives of his wife and children. If it were anything else—any other case at all, I could turn it over to my assistant. But this is a personal responsibility."

"You spoke of an assistant," said Tyler hopefully.

"Yes," said Dr. Karasek thoughtfully. "But he is young—and not himself a psychiatrist."

"Oh," said Tyler, disappointedly. "I—can't you even give me advice, Dr. Karasek?"

Again the little man turned his look of mild astonishment upon Tyler.

"Advice?" he said reproachfully. "In a case of this importance, without a personal investigation? My dear sir!"

"But what shall I do?" cried Tyler desperately. "If your assistant is not qualified—"

"I did not say he was not qualified," said Dr. Karasek mildly. "I merely said he was young, and not a psychiatrist."

"Then do you think—" Tyler began, his hope rising.

"He is extremely competent," said Dr. Karasek. "He has been my confidential assistant for four years, understands my—ah—methods. He has a good education, comes of excellent family, and has a very keen, observing mind. I have known him fifteen years. He is entirely trustworthy. But I would not urge—"

"I rely upon your judgment, Dr. Karasek," said Tyler earnestly. "If you think this young fellow qualified—"

"I think him qualified," said Dr. Karasek. "But you—"

"If you say he's all right, then he is all right," said Tyler.

"Wait," said Dr. Karasek. "I shall tell you more about him. His name is Nathaniel Hawthorne Benson, 2nd. I first met him during the war. At sixteen, unable to get into the American forces, he had run away to Canada, joined the Canadians. Though a mere boy, he became a flyer, a gallant one. He was brought down in a fight with two German planes, and cracked up inside our lines."

Dr. Karasek paused and smiled:

"The American lines, you understand? He had a piece of steel in his skull, touching the brain. I was with the base hospital. The steel was removed, but he had suffered a terrific shock. In short, he was a mental case. I had charge of it. I was fortunate enough to cure him. After the war he went to college at the University of Pennsylvania, and we kept in touch with each other. He was an accomplished, even famous athlete as well as a fine student. His own case had made him keenly interested in my work. After college, when I was head of an institution in Philadelphia, he came to me, asked to work with me. I soon made him my assistant. When I left to become a private psychologist—what he calls 'trouble-shooter'—I took him along. He has worked on my most important cases. That is all."

"He could—consult with you by telephone?" asked Tyler.

"Yes," said Dr. Karasek.

"Then he will do," said Tyler.

"Very good," said Dr. Karasek. He regarded Tyler thoughtfully.

"One thing," he continued. "I think it advisable that you—ah—let him find things out for himself. eh? I think you should—ah—tell him only the girl's background. Ah—not the details of the—ah—the—shall we say peculiar manifestations. He has ears—and eyes. Let him use them, eh? Then he will have no preconceived—ah—notions distinguished-looking, in his way, as the house itself.

"Mr. Benson," Nat said. "I believe Mr. Tyler is expecting me?"

The butler nodded, and led him into an old-fashioned living-room on the parlor floor, seated him and vanished silently. Nat glanced about him curiously. It was a noble old room, high-ceilinged, a room with a much-lived-in atmosphere. Nat liked the soft, heavy rug, the big period chair in which he sat, the massive old furniture, the mellow grand piano. He relaxed, felt comfortable, almost at home.

In a moment a tall, sparely-built man of middle years, clad in dress-

"It is the case of my—daughter," he said.

about the case. He will come to it freshly, clearly, no."

Tyler nodded. "He will come—immediately?" he asked anxiously.

"He returns from a case in Boston tonight," said Dr. Karasek. "I shall leave before he arrives. But I shall leave a message. . . . And in the morning—"

"But couldn't he—couldn't he come tonight?" asked Tyler.

Dr. Karasek nodded slowly. "As you wish," he said. "Tonight, then."

Nat Benson pulled his coat closer about his throat as he turned off Fifth Avenue and faced the icy blast of wind which blew down East Seventy-ninth Street. At the corner of Madison he stopped for a moment under a street lamp and looked at his watch. It was five minutes after midnight. A strange hour to go out on a case! But he was like old Doc to shoot him out like this with that cryptic little message.

He pulled the slip of paper from his pocket and stared at it again. It read:

"Please report to Mr. Daniel Tyler—East Seventy-ninth Street, immediately on return. Utmost urgency. You have an opportunity to discover something that may be of revolutionary importance—that may affect the whole course of human relations.—Karasek."

Nat's eyes brightened. This was something to look forward to! He confirmed the address again, and plunged on into the wind. Presently he began to scan the house numbers. It was an excellent neighborhood, mostly of new buildings. Ah, there was the house! He gazed up at an imposing old house, distinguished, aloof, aristocratic among the shiny new apartment buildings.

It was dark except for a beam of light from the window of the parlor floor. He mounted the broad curving steps and pressed the button. The bell was answered, after a moment, by a white-haired butler. Nat ing-gown, appeared. His strong, high-boned face, framed under a great mane of white hair, was immediately illuminated by a charming, friendly smile.

"Ah, Mr. Benson," he said, in a rich, grave voice. "I am Daniel Tyler."

Nat admired the thin, high-bridged nose, the finely-chiseled features, the patrician quality of the man's whole bearing as he advanced toward him across the room, hand outstretched. He gave an odd impression of both delicacy and power, an impression strengthened when Nat grasped his hand, a smooth, almost soft hand, flexible, with incredibly long, tapering fingers, and then felt its firm, strong clasp.

"I'm glad to see you," Tyler said warmly. "It was good of you to come at this hour. Please sit down."

Nat sank back into the great chair and returned Tyler's appraising glance with a smile. The man coughed deprecatingly.

"Forgive the—scrutiny?" he said. "But this is—very delicate case, you see. And I—"

"I understand," said Nat quietly. "Now, hadn't you better tell me just what this 'delicate case' is?"

Tyler looked at him steadily, thoughtfully, for a moment.

"It is the case of my—daughter," he said.

"A mental case?" Nat asked sympathetically.

"No, no," said Tyler quickly. "It's—well, it is a mental case, of course, to a certain extent. Tyler went on. "What I mean is, my daughter is not at all unbalanced. You understand?"

Nat did not, but he nodded gravely.

IS THE COOKIE JAR FULL?

Mrs. Crabtree Gives You These Suggestions

Dear Friends in Bristol:

There is supposed to be a time and place for everything but any time is cookie time, and any place is brighter when the cookie jar is near.

Refrigerator cookies are so very easy to make. Quickly blend the ingredients; divide, and make into small rolls. Chill thoroughly or until the roll is firm, slice thin and rapidly bake at a temperature of 400 degrees.

Today I am giving you a recipe for a good rolled cookie. This is a foundation recipe and by using your ingenuity, a great variety of attractive cookies may be made from this one recipe. A few suggestions would be: Sprinkle mixture generously with coconut and roll lightly; sprinkle mixture with cinnamon and sugar before cutting; shape mixture with heart, diamond, spade and club cutters. When baked ice the hearts and diamonds with a red frosting and the spades and clubs with a chocolate frosting.

Cookies—Foundation Recipe
Blend together one-half cup of shortening with one cup of sugar. Add two eggs well beaten. Sift one and one-half cups of flour with two teaspoons of baking powder and one-half teaspoon of salt and one-half teaspoon of nutmeg or other spice if desired. Add to sugar and shortening mixture. Add two tablespoons of milk and an additional one and one-half cups of flour. One teaspoon of any desired flavoring may be added. Chill in refrigerator so as to get a mixture that can be handled. Use a small portion at a time. Roll on a floured board or put into a pastry cloth and shape as desired. Place on a greased cookie sheet and bake for about 8 minutes in a 350 degree oven. This recipe makes five dozen.

Tea Wafers—Crisp Cookie
One-half cup of shortening, one cup of pastry flour, one-half teaspoon vanilla, one-half cup sugar, one egg, one-fourth teaspoon salt.

Blend sugar, shortening and unbeaten egg. Sift together the flour and salt. Add vanilla and flour to sugar and shortening mixture. Drop by teaspoonfuls two inches apart on a greased cookie sheet. Place half a pecan on each mound and bake in a 400 degree oven for 12 to 15 minutes. These wafers are very delicate and should not be browned except just around the edge. This recipe makes 18 wafers.

Raisin Bars—Chewy Cookies
One cup sifted flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, one cup sugar, two eggs well beaten, one tablespoon melted shortening, two cups finely cut raisins, one-half cup broken nut meats, one tablespoon hot coffee or milk.

Sift together the flour, baking powder, salt. Add sugar and melted shortening to eggs. Add raisins and nuts, then flour. Mix well. Add hot coffee or milk. Bake in two greased pans 8 inches square at a temperature of 325 degrees F. for 30 to 35 minutes. Cool. Cut into strips and roll in powdered sugar.

SHALL IT BE PAINT OR PAPER?

Freshening the Walls Brings Spring Problems

Furnace and open fires have taken their toll. Now is the time to brighten up the walls and give them the same freshness that Spring is bringing to the great outdoors.

Plaster walls may be painted and transform the room. If painted before and in good condition, they need only one coat. However, if the last coat of paint was dark and you now wish a lighter tone, two coats will be necessary. If the walls are old, in poor condition, all cracks should be repaired, given an undercoat of paint, then given two coats of paint for a satisfactory finish.

In choosing wall papers, it is best to hang two or three strips of paper on the wall for the effect. A color scheme or large floral pattern may look well on a sample sheet whereas it would be hard to live with on the entire surface of the wall. Plain papers are always in good taste and provide a satisfactory background for any style or period of furniture. Some of the newer papers come in solid colors ranging to the darker tones. The effect of these papers is very soft and gives the impression of a painted wall.

Color plays an important part in your rooms. The children's rooms should have the lightest, happiest colors, pale blues, greens, pinks and yellows. North rooms need warmth so we decorate them in reds, yellows, oranges, tan and beiges; the south rooms call for just the opposite or cooling tones of greens, blues, grays and whites.

—RECIPES—

Cheese Cakes

One and one-half cups cottage cheese; one half cup sugar; three eggs; three tablespoons top milk or cream; grated rind of one lemon; pastry.

Mix together the cheese, sugar, cream and lemon rind; then add the eggs, well beaten. Line muffin tins with pastry and fill two-thirds full with the cheese mixture. Bake in a 350 degree oven for about fifteen minutes.

Dropped Molasses Cookies

One-half cup shortening; one cup sugar; two eggs; one half cup milk; one half cup molasses; one half cup raisins; three cups flour; three teaspoons baking powder; one teaspoon cinnamon; one half teaspoon cloves.

Blend the sugar and shortening. Add the well beaten eggs, then the milk, molasses and raisins. Sift together the dry ingredients. Drop by spoonfuls on greased pans some distance apart. Bake in a 325 degree oven for 10 to 15 minutes.

Tomato Dumplings

Sift, then measure two cups of flour. Add three teaspoons of baking powder. Break into a cup one egg and fill the cup with tomato juice.

Sift dry ingredients into a bowl, add liquid and mix lightly with a fork. Drop by tablespoonfuls into meat gravy. Cover closely and cook 15 minutes without removing cover. Garnish with fresh chopped parsley.

Corned Beef Croquettes

Two tablespoons shortening; one half cup potatoes; one fourth cup milk; one and one half cups finely chopped corned beef; two tablespoons chopped parsley; one well-beaten egg; egg and bread crumbs; 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion and seasoning to taste.

Melt the shortening in a saucepan, add the mashed potatoes and milk, beat thoroughly. Then add the meat, parsley, onion, seasonings and egg. Spread the mixture on a platter and when cool shape into croquettes. Coat with beaten egg and bread crumbs and fry to a golden brown. These croquettes are delicious when fried in deep fat.

Banana Brown Betty

Two cups sliced bananas; two cups soft bread crumbs; one third cup shortening; one third teaspoon salt; one half cup sugar; one fourth cup water; one tablespoon lemon juice.

Melt shortening and mix well with crumbs and salt. Add lemon juice and sugar to bananas and place alternate layers of crumbs and fruit in greased pudding dish. Pour in water, cover and bake 30 to 40 minutes in a 350 degree oven. Uncover at the last to crisp the top. Serve as an accompaniment to a meat dish; or as a dessert with cream or a foamy sauce.

Cherry-Nut Salad

Drain a can of white cherries. Remove stones and fill cavities with almond or pecan nut meats. Arrange on a bed of crisp lettuce and garnish with cream mayonnaise and a red cherry.

Quick Barbecued Lamb

Cut cold roast lamb in slices and reheat in the following sauce. Melt two tablespoons of shortening in a saucepan, add one tablespoon of tart vinegar; 4 tablespoons currant jelly; one fourth teaspoon mustard; salt and cayenne to taste.

DUTCH OVEN COOKERY

Less expensive cuts of meat are made appetizing by cooking in a Dutch

Oven on top of the stove. A Dutch Oven is a heavy cast iron, or cast aluminum roaster with tight-fitting top. Very little heat is required and practically no watching is required.

LEFT-OVER COFFEE

Coffee jelly, coffee ice cream, Russian chocolate are some of the uses for left-over coffee. This coffee may also be used in chocolate and ginger cake in place of milk or water.

LEMONADE IN QUANTITY

For every dozen lemons, allow one pound of sugar. Add water and ice to make one gallon.

Cookies Like Mother Makes

Cookies are a universal favorite but especially so when they are cut into fancy shapes and made by the recipes found on this page.

SUNDAY DINNER Suggestions

By ANN PAGE

LAMB comes to the fore as the best meat value of the week. Veal is very much higher and beef somewhat so. Fresh fish from the ocean is coming to market in increasing variety and quantity.

Oranges continue to be an outstanding fruit value. Banana quality improves as the cold weather moderates. Strawberries are more plentiful with both Florida and Louisiana shipping. All these fruits go well in fruit salads, fruit cups, alone or in combination.

Lettuce is cheap and plentiful along with cabbage and spinach. Eggs are one of the best food values at this season as all the grades are excellent in quality and low in price.

Here are three menus for Sunday dinner at different budget levels.

Average Director Afraid To Carry Out Convictions

Bucks county and not a set-up when it finally does come to rearranging our school system. We are trying to get away from increased taxes, that is sure, but let us not hand over to the State any more authority or we will certainly have centralized power.

"According to the present larger unit idea, all districts under 1000 population will lose their identity and become a part of a combined unit. If that proposition is turned down, you still have the one-room school house and the standard of that one-room school must be kept high until something better comes. The one-room school today would be O. K. if the best teachers were available, if they had libraries and if they were kept clean and attractive like larger schools. I believe in progress but not in failing for every new idea that comes along."

In answer to a question handed to the president of the school directors seeking information as to how much a school board should spend on medical aid outside of first-aid, Superintendent Hoffman suggested that districts combine and hire a full-time nurse.

After a discussion of the circulating library proposition for Bucks county, the convention authorized the president to appoint a committee of five members whose duty it will be to interview the Bucks County Commissioners and the school authorities concerning the proposition. The directors were informed that it will cost a half mill tax to finance the proposition.

Assistant County Superintendents Charles Boehm, of Morrisville, and Albert C. Rutter, of Perkaskie, both spoke favorably concerning the proposed circulating library. Mr. Boehm pointed out however that the general tendency now and a good one is to develop the individual library for each class room. Mr. Rutter pointed out that the circulating library would not only benefit the boys and girls of Bucks county but would be a great help in adult education.

A complete commercial course for all rural schools was advocated by Anthony Rezonico, of Kintnersville, but Assistant Superintendent Boehm explained that the difficulty about that proposition is that enough students are graduated now in the commercial course of the larger schools to more than fill the available positions.

"We have been deceiving our boys and girls about the commercial course," Boehm said. "There are not enough jobs for them when they graduate. What we need is to build up our general course to include one year of typewriting, commercial law and penmanship. Stenography is good, but not all students can master it. After you leave school you forget shorthand if you do not keep at it but you never forget typewriting. For that reason we have been somewhat hesitant about establishing or advocating commercial courses in the smaller schools."

Hudson and Terraplane Spring Showing Here

A special Spring showing of Hudson and Terraplane cars opened today at the showrooms of Wright Service Garage, local dealer of these cars. Featured by a new convertible coupe and a new sedan model as well as several new and striking color options, the exhibit is attracting a throng of automobile enthusiasts.

The Hudson Motor Car Company originated the convertible coupe as a stock model in this country and has always made a point of being right up to the minute in this type of design. This particular type of car lends itself extremely well to the Hudson and Terraplane chassis with their outstanding ratio of power to weight. Not only are the lines exceedingly graceful, but the colors touch a new high in the paint blenders' art, while the performance is sufficiently dazzling to satisfy the cravings of those who demand the utmost.

The new sedan is similar in every respect to the big, roomy car that Hudson announced on its 127 in. wheelbase chassis last Fall. This car is mounted on a 120-in. chassis which is long enough to give a fine, full-six-passenger car. Equipped with the electric hand, if desired, three passengers are comfortably accommodated in the roomy front seat without the usual interference of the gearshift lever.

The new colors give Hudson and Terraplane buyers the widest range of choices in the low price field, rivaling the color range usually associated with the highest priced cars. Particularly interesting are a new Lake Maroon and also an Antique Ivory, which is especially striking on the new convertible. According to Mr. Wright the special display will last all through the week.

Grand Jury Session May Be A Prolonged One

Major Alynne M. Freeman, friend of Gov. Hoffman, telephoned Warden Kimberling to hold up the execution for at least 48 hours because the grand jury was investigating "new and interesting angles" of the Wendell "confession," and now Kimberling has set the hour of Hauptmann's doom at eight p. m. April 3.

The big question in Trenton today is: Will Hauptmann die tomorrow night? The answer is "yes" and "no"—depending upon with whom you talk.

Everybody has his own guess. Nobody knows.

PREPARATION OF BEDS FOR GARDEN FLOWERS

The least expensive way to prepare soil for planting is the right way. The soil should be prepared carefully and thoroughly loosened so as to cover all roots.

Well-rotted manure is one of the best sources for enriching the soil; however, this should never be placed in direct contact with the roots of plants. It is unwise to fertilize only the area where a plant or shrub is to be placed. This type of planting is known as pocket planting. As the plant grows, the roots are stunted because the other part of the bed does not provide adequate food supply for the growing plant.

Heavy soils should be lightened with a straw manure or sandy loam. Light soils should be improved with vegetable matter.

Drainage is another important consideration when preparing beds for summer flowers. A sandy soil will have ample drainage whereas a clayey soil must, in most cases, be provided with artificial drainage. It is a mistake to hill earth around a plant as this drains the water away from the plant. A shallow depression should be left around the plant which will hold water to soak the roots.

There are plants and shrubs suited to all types of soil. If you are interested in a rock garden, select the plants for that type of garden. If you wish an old-fashioned rose garden, there are specific roses belonging in that class. Know your soil, your plants and planting conditions. Knowledge will give you the garden that you have dreamed of through the long winter days.

CAT CALLED POLICE

NASHUA, N. H. — (INS) — A light flashed at intervals at 5 a. m. on the switchboard of the local telephone office. An operator reported to the police something was wrong. When a police car arrived at a Factory street market, police found the signals had been caused by a cat rubbing against the telephone instrument.

HOLLYWOOD—These Changing scenes: More things happen on the "San Francisco" set than on any other picture being made in Hollywood. We arrive there on a tip to expect something interesting and find an air of suspense not accounted for even if it is to be the last scene of the picture. The whole cast has an air of knowing a secret, from Jeanette MacDonald to the extras and musicians grouped around the stage that is supposed to represent the Lyric hall, as it was in 1906.

There is not long to wait. Van Dyke gets a call from the sound stage door and strides over to greet a tall man and a tiny woman who are coming in. Everybody says it at once: "Q. W. Griffith!"

This is not "the old master's" first appearance in Hollywood, but the moment is real drama.

For Van Dyke, the big money director of the talkies, served as make-up man and general errand boy for Griffith during the filming of "Intolerance". Moreover, he hasn't just rediscovered his old boss like the rest of Hollywood. He has said all along:

"D. W. has forgotten more than any of us out here know."

The two meet like old pals now, yet there is a shade of deference in Van Dyke's manner. As they come over, arm in arm, the orchestra starts to play a martial strain.

Griffith turns with a surprised smile. "Why, it's my theme number for 'Intolerance'," he says. "Yeah," rumbles Van Dyke. "I summed it for them, and they earned it for you."

Then Van Dyke, who used to carry Griffith's chair around for him, gets a chair for the director now. He turns it halfway around and you see it has printed on the back of it: "D. W. Griffith."

The moment is not yet drained of drama. The real climax comes a little later after Griffith and his bride have watched Jeanette MacDonald sing a song up on the stage. A hot song for Jeanette, too. Accompanied by swaying arms and hips. When it is over, Van Dyke has the cameras up on the stage to get a shot down on the orchestra and the audience.

He is explaining to Griffith what he wants to get in the scene. Suddenly, he thrusts D. W. forward.

"You direct it," he says.

It gives you a tingle in the spine to see him do it. The man is changed. Emotion flows from him. The actor in the pit is so over-awed that the scene has to be retaken. When it is done and when Griffith has said: "That's very good," the extras out front break into a roar of spontaneous applause. This is one day that will mean more than a pay check to them.

They are just unmasking the murderer as we arrive on "The Ex Mrs. Bradford" set at R. K. O. The scene is William Powell's apartment, one of those modernistic conceptions of the movies, gleaming with copper and with everything streamlined. The killer, whom Bill has just named, is covering most of the cast with a revolver. Lined up behind a sofa are Powell, Lila Lee, Lucille Gleason, Robert Armstrong, Ralph Morgan, Frank Reicher, Eric Blore and Jean Arthur. Erin O'Brien Moore is sitting on the couch almost in the shadow of the gun.

Suddenly, Jean Arthur kicks the cord of a Venetian blind which comes down with a crash. Powell hurries a pillow at the murderer and makes a dash for him.

"Cut!" cried Director Steve Roberts.

And, as everybody is relaxing, Jimmy Gleason, on the sidelines, calls in a high pitched voice: "If I had known it was going to be a pillow fight, I wouldn't have come. You boarding school girls kill me!"

We see one of the screen's most famous doubles work later on in the same scene. From the point where Powell makes a dash to grapple with the murderer, a double is cut in to do the actual fight. If Bill got a black eye or was injured, it might hold up the picture and cost the company thousands.

The double is Chick Collins, who does the rough and tumble work for dozens of the stars. He takes Powell's place in the line-up behind the sofa and another double replaces the killer.

Director Roberts calls: "Don't leave your fight in the gym, Chick. All right, let's go."

Powell had thrown the pillow-fight, so he misses a couple of times. Finally, the pillow lands and Collins leaps upon his adversary. They are a mass of flailing arms and legs when Roberts yells:

"Cut! All right boys, hold that position!"

They freeze, just like those trick effects when a train is rushing towards you on the screen and suddenly stops dead.

It takes perfect control of muscles to be a Hollywood double.

REFEREE STOPS CARTER-DAHDAH BOUT IN THIRD ROUND AT CROYDON ARENA; WAS GREAT BATTLE WHILE IT LASTED

CROYDON, Apr. 2.—The second chapter of the bitter feud between Jack Carter and Joe Dahdah came to a dramatic ending last night at the Croydon Palace of punch, when referee Eddie Morris stopped the slaughter to save Dahdah from probable serious injury in the middle of the third round of their semi-windup bout.

Carter and Dahdah started where they left off two weeks ago, right from the opening gong, both boys landing heavy wallops on each other and continuing at a very fast pace until the end. Carter got over some telling rights to Joe's jaw that did the Italian boy no good; also a right uppercut under the heart, but Mr. Carter knew he was in a fight, having to take quite a number of telling wallops himself before being declared the winner on a technical knockout.

In the windup the popular little Jimmy Tygh gave the fans all they wanted in the way of fast action in his bout with a shifty little chocolate bon-bon, James Pitts of the Sigma Theta Club of Philadelphia. This was a clever, rapid-hitting bout with lots of fast infighting. Tygh, who carried more dynamite in his gloves, won the judges' decision in three rounds.

The Willie Lucas-John Granger fight ended almost before it started with Lucas sprawling out on his face from a wicked short right to the jaw delivered by the rangy John Granger, 135-pound Sigma Theta flash. Anthony Sarullo of the Seymour Club lost the decision to Tony Tedesco of the Older Boys Club in a heavy-hitting affair that went the limit, while Joseph Di-Buono and Tommy Darigo, a pair of fast dancing powder puff punchers, tired the crowd in an uninteresting three round set-to.

Henry Flink, about the best light-weight boxer and puncher in the Philadelphia district, defeated the dark shadow, Sammy Terrell, of Sigma Theta, in three rounds of fast action. Terrell, the danciest, pranciest colored boy to show here, pleased the crowd with his funny antics and got a great hand at the bell.

John Johnson, another Sigma Theta warrior, won a technical knock-out in the second round when Tommy Cole of Nativity broke his thumb. Walter Kurko of Older Boys Club beat Joe Myers of Croydon in three interesting rounds, while Willie Leighton of 160 lb. class—Jack Carter won by technical knockout over Joseph Dahdah, Seymour, in third round.

126 lb. class—James Tygh, Dag-gart A. C., defeated Jimmy Pitts, Sigma Theta, in three rounds.

Croydon defeated John Clements of Seymour in three.

Young Leighton is the most improved youngster around these parts, and should get better with every fight if the business doesn't go to his head. He traveled around Clements like a cooper around a barrel, sending swift right and left crosses to the Philadelphia's head and body throughout.

In the opener, Jimmy Nocito of Croydon met a tartar in Frank Santora of the Older Boys Club. Santora kept boring in on Nocito continuously, never letting the local boy get his heavy artillery working. In the second round Nocito received a nasty cut under his left eye which seemed to bother him during the rest of the fight. At the end Santora got the decision of the referee.

The officials were: Referee, Eddie Morris; timekeeper, Joe Palermo; judges, William Montgomery and James McGurk.

The next set of fights are scheduled for next Wednesday night.

KATAN LOSES MATCH TO ITALIAN GRAPPLER

TRENTON, N. J., Apr. 2.—Gino Garibaldi, brawny Italian grappler, won a popular victory over John Katan, the rowdy Canuck, last night at the Arena before some 1,800 fans. Garibaldi, using a double toe hold, made his opponent quit after 30 minutes and 55 seconds of savage wrestling. Katan was unable to appear for the second scheduled fall. Katan weighed 218, while Garibaldi scaled 215.

Dr. Len Hall, 215, of Nebraska, tugged to a 30-minute draw with Joe Cox, 232, of Cleveland, in the semi-final. It was the best bout of the night. In the preliminaries, Ivan Managoff, 214, Russian wrestler, tossed Dr. Harry Fields, 212, of New York, with a rolling backdrop in 23-03, while La-Verne Baxter, 222, of Canada, pinned Tex Morgan, 226, of Texas, with a body press in 17-12.

STOCKHOLM.—(INS)—Longevity seems to be easily achieved in Sweden, where in 1935 thirteen people died after having reached the century mark. Five at the age of 101, two at 102, two at 103, two at 104, one at 105 and one at 106.

BENSALEM NINE OUT TO PRACTICE FOR SEASON

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Apr. 2.—Over 40 candidates for the Bensalem High baseball team have been working out for the past two weeks under the supervision of Coaches George Reimer and Frank Meyer. Last year's Blue and Gray varsity made an enviable record by winning 10 games and losing 3, and this year's team will have to do some stepping to equal that record. The following players are hold-overs from last year's team, and will no doubt form the nucleus of this season's nine: Harold Robinson, pitcher; Joe Fletcher, first base; Don Torpey, ss.; Lou Tomlinson, 3b.; Jim McMahon and Henry Spengler, outfield. There is some promising material among the new candidates, and with the team well fortified in infield and outfield material, the success of the team will depend on the caliber of pitching and catching. Three non-league games have been scheduled before the first league setto with Newtown, Lower Bucks County League champions, on Wednesday, April 15.

The boys who are again doing a capable job as managers are: Dave

Price, Ray Osborne, and Charlie Abbott. The first home game is with Lower Moreland High, on Bensalem field, Tuesday, April 7. The complete schedule follows:

Schedule:
April 3—Southampton, away
April 7—Lower Moreland, home
April 8—Yardley, away

INVISIBLE TAXES

When you get home at night and sit down to a friendly rubber of contract you have paid a ten-cent tax on the cards you use. If you go to the movies or the theatre, you pay one cent on each ten cents in excess of the admission price of forty cents.

Other examples and the manner in which the tax is passed on to you could be related ad infinitum.

You may say, well what difference does it make how I pay it as long as I pay it?

It makes a great difference. Direct taxes result in greater interest in the cost of government. As an example, permit me to call to your attention the situation here following the World War.

It is unquestionably true that because the major part of the Government's income was derived from direct taxation, causing greater interest in governmental expenditures, the post-war retrenchments and economies were effected in Washington.

Detroit's Galant General

By BURNLEY

Alvin "General" Crowder, chunky hurling veteran of the Detroit Tigers, 35, rounding into shape at Lakeland, Fla., for another year of regular toil on the mound.

At 35, the General no longer has the speed of old, and must rely on soft ball stuff to battle the sluggers. A master at conserving his energy, Crowder goes through no waste motions on the slab, which explains his baseball longevity.

The Detroit twirling star is shooting for a new American League record this year. He hopes to get into his fourth consecutive world series, and as the Tigers are strong favorites to repeat, it looks as if the General will make the grade.

He hurled for the Senators in the 1933 classic, and did his stuff for Detroit in the last two series. Goose Goslin, ancient outfielder, was also with Washington in 1933, so the "Geese" will be a co-holder of the record along with Crowder if the Tigers win again.

Speaking of world series, the last one was the occasion of a really dramatic situation in which Crowder was involved.

It seems that Mrs. Crowder was seriously ill at the time of the big series, and listened to the play-by-play account of the games over the radio. Doctors told the General that a lot depended on whether he won the game he pitched, and that if he lost, it might seriously affect Mrs. Crowder's chances of recovery.

Crowder had run into a lot of tough luck in the two previous classics, and up to that time has never won a series game.

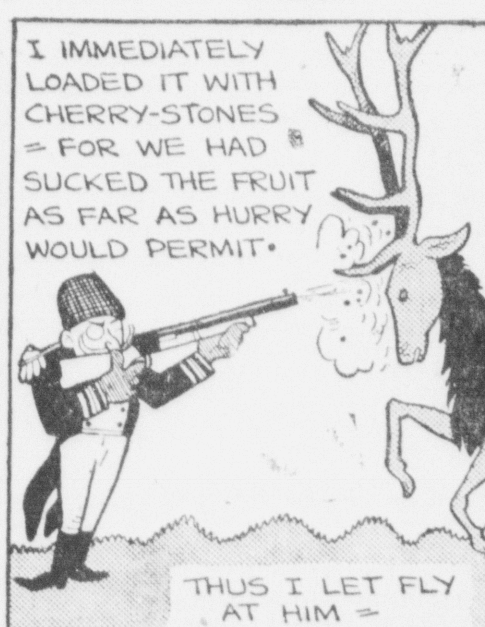

Knowing that his wife's condition depended largely on the result of this game, the Detroit gamester, under pressure, pitched the Tigers to victory. This triumph meant more to the gallant old General than any other win of his hurling career.

BARON MUNCHAUSEN

THE STately STAG GLOWERED AT US AS IF HE KNEW THAT MY GUN WAS EMPTY.

THUS I LET FLY AT HIM.

I HIT HIM IN THE FOREHEAD — JUST BETWEEN THE ANTLERS IT STUNNED HIM — YET HE STAGGERED AWAY.

A YEAR LATER IN THE SAME FOREST I BEHELD THE NOBLE STAG WITH A FINE FULL-GROWN CHERRY-TREE BETWEEN HIS ANTLERS.

RUMPUS

'SMATTER SKELLY, YA LOOK LIKE YER READY TO TIP OVER.

YEH, TH' DOCTOR SAYS I GOTTA PUT ON SOME WEIGHT.

IS THAT SO. WELL, DIDN'T CHA HEAR ABOUT TH' BABY WOT WAS FED ON SOME KIND O' BRAN AN' GAINED FORTY POUNDS IN TWO WEEKS?

DO YOU KNOW TH' BABY? WHOSE BABY WAS IT?
